Allowed to Die.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, February 22.—But-feted by another day of filibuster in the senate, the administration shipping bill tonight appeared headed toward its doom. The end seemed likely not later than Saturday on a motion to recommit the legislation or to displace it with another bill.

The filibuster which began Monday night, continued unabated through the day and into the night. During its progress there were a number of private conferences between republican and democratic leaders in which negotiations were conducted by definite action by Saturday night so that the final week of the session might be left open to the consideration of other legislation.

Prohibition of the ship bill, after consuming the strength of their forces, openly said for the first time that they hand enough votes to get the measure out of the way unless its supporters could obtain some action upon it within the next two days. The prospect of its supporters being able to do this appeared dark, in fact, it grew darker with each hour that the flow of talk continued.

Solons Back Down.
Several senators who have been hitherto favorable toward the bill privately admitted during the day that they would not continue their support of the measure much further, if it continued to block other legislation. One senator, Willis, republican, Ohio, stated on the floor that he desired to develop if the bill was to be killed, there were many other bills,
including some he was interested in,
which should be taken up. Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, later plainly told the senate that it was the intention of those opposed to the legislation to kill it by any other legiti-mate means and that he considered filibustering legitimate.

Washington, February 22.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The senate committee today referred to the court of claims for adjudication over two hundred claims of southern cotton oil mills in excess of $6,000-000 for losses sustained as a result of cancellation of government contracts following the war. Forty-eight Georgia mills and companies,
with claims aggregating approximately $1,000,000, were included in the list.

Action in the senate will follow. It was stated, after a proper adjudi-claims.

MURDERS LINKED
WITH BIG BOGUS
CURRENCY PLOT

Believed Many Unsolved Killings Came From Double-Crossing in Ranks of Counterfeiters.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
New York, February 22.—Direct connection between many unsolved murders in this city during the past few years and the gigantic counterfeiting system yesterday was indicated today when police began an independent investigation into the counterfeit organization.

Several of the murders were believed to have resulted from passage of bogus money and from double crossing in the ranks of the counterfeiters, the police said. The crimes were said by investigators to have been most frequent in counterfeit circles which overlapped on liquor and drug trafficking groups.

Discovery by secret service agents who carried on an eight months' investigation into the counterfeiting conspiracy, that the main wholesale distributing place here was the Cafe Crosby of Savor owned by John Drosos, recalled to the police that several gang murders have been committed in or near the cafe. Drosos was arrested yesterday.

Dramatic Murder.
The most dramatic murder committed in Drosos's cafe was that of Joseph Viscera, known as Joe Peppi, leader of Harlem's Little Italy, who was shot and killed on October 13, 1921.

Viscera, who was proprietor of a Fordham roadhouse, and reputed to be a very wealthy, drove up to the Cros-

REVERSING ORDER
DENIED BY CHIEFReassignment of Patrolman Lindsey Follows Action Taken by Police Committee, It Is Stated.

Denial that Chief Beavers had reversed orders of the police committee by changing Patrolman L. H.
Lindsey from the uniform detachment to the identification bureau, as was stated in a published statement Thursday, was made by members of the committee, who requested that the alleged mistatement be corrected.

Patrolman Lindsey was ordered assigned to the identification bureau by the committee at its special meeting Wednesday night, according to members. Chief Beavers being requested to issue such orders. This matter was discussed by the committee, it was stated, following adjournment of the special meeting, after Patrolman Lindsey's qualifications had been reviewed showing him to be fitted for this work.

Instructed Change.

"We instructed Chief Beavers to effect the transfer of Patrolman Lindsey to the identification bureau immediately," declared a member of the committee, who requested that his name be withheld, stating that he had been "quoted in the newspapers too frequently of late."

"The chief seemed to favor the assignment and simply acted in conformity with the committee's wishes.
There is absolutely no truth to the published statements to the effect that Chief Beavers had reversed the committee's orders."

Chief Beavers substantiated the statement from committee members.

Amendment for Appoint-

DEBT FUNDING BILL
READY FOR HARDING

Harris Will Confer With President on Selections of New Members for Debt Body.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, February 22.—The last action necessary to congressional approval of the British debt settlement was taken today by the house,
which, without a roll call, accepted
senate changes to the bill amending the debt-funding act.

Under the senate changes given house approval agreements negotiated
by the commission with the other debtor nations also will be subject to congressional approval. In addition, the commission will be enlarged to eight members, three of whom will be democrats.

As a result of the congressional approval and with the signature of the president assumed to be certain,
treasury officials began the drafting of the indentures which are to be exchanged between the United States and Great Britain and which will put into operation the program for refunding over 62 years the British war-time debt of $4,000,000,000.

The indentures will embody the terms accepted by the British government and prescribe the methods of payment, all of which were tentatively worked out between the two debt
funding commissions in their recent negotiations. British internal bonds covering the amount of the debt will be deposited with the United States treasury.

Uncertain on Date.
Under Secretary Gilbert of the treasury was unable to state tonight
the date on which the agreement will go into operation. A series of conferences is being held between officials of the treasury and A. Rowe-Dutton, the British treasury representative
who remained here after his commission's work was concluded, and these conferences will determine the final form of the contractual agreement which will put into legal form the terms agreed upon in the negotiations. The British government probably will be represented by Sir Auckland Geddes, its ambassador here, in formally signing the document which puts the funding plan into operation.

Decision as to the denomination of the bonds which this government will hold has been held in abeyance until it can be determined what sizes will best suit the convenience of the government which is to pay them. Treasury officials, however, declare that several of them will be the bonds of the largest denomination ever produced.

HARRIS TO CONFER
WITH HARDING.Constitution Bureau.
Raleigh Hotel.

Constitution Leased Wire.)—After agreement by the house to his amendment adding three democrats to the world war debt funding commission,
Senator Harris, of Georgia, said:

"Because I offered the amendment
I do not assume that I will be consulted about the appointments. My sole idea is that the commission should be non-partisan, and as the future settlements may not prove as satisfactory as the British offer it is in the best interest of the entire country that both major parties be recognized in the negotiations. Certainly, it is the most practical thing to do, as the political division in the next and future congresses will not be as great as now."

"Any democratic senator would be a desirable addition to the commission. I shall present my views to the president as suggestions from one who is deeply interested in the prompt and fair adjustment of the debt problems, but in no effort to advise him about who should be appointed."

Representative Crisp, of Georgia, and a member of the committee, urged the Harris amendment before the house ways and means committee, resulting in the conferees being instructed to confer.

STRUCK BY AUTO,
CHILD IS DYING

E. D. Welch Put Under Arrest on Charge of Reckless Driving—De-

able.

Adel Feckoury, 7 years old, of 1721-2 Decatur street, is at Grady hospital at death's door from injuries received when struck by an automobile Thursday afternoon, and E. D.
Welch, of 76 West Harris street, is held behind the bars at police station under a charge of reckless driving. The little girl received a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. The accident occurred near the barber shop of the child's father, at 214 Decatur street. She was crossing the street with another girl
at the time she was struck.

The machine which Welch was driving belonged to Miss Claudia M.
Harris, of 39 Ferguson, according to the police report. She was riding in the car with Welch at the time.
Welch, who is a student at the Southern College of Pharmacy, maintained that the accident was unavoidable, and that he was traveling at a moderate rate of speed.

W. H. Bruce, treasurer of the Atlanta and West Point railroad, and O. F. Kornegay, manager of the Premier Service company, narrowly escaped serious injuries in a wreck between the automobile in which they were riding and a laundry motor truck driven by a negro, George Watson.

The accident occurred at Auburn avenue and Courtland street, the laundry truck being overtaken from the rear by the automobile. Both Mr.
Bruce and Mr. Kornegay were severely shaken up.

Mr. Bruce lives at 19 Fairview road, and Mr. Kornegay at Stone Mountain.

Collision between two motor trucks
at Simpson and Marietta streets
about 7:10 o'clock Thursday morning, resulted in Jim Walker, negro, who was operating one of the cars, being badly injured. He was carried to the Grady hospital.

The truck that collided with the negro's machine belonged to the Georgia Railway and Power company. It was driven by T. H. Lee, of 78 Cameron street.

NEGRESS REPUDIATES
STORY ABOUT BLAZE

Says She Confessed Because She Was "Scared." Woman Not Threatened, Declares Witness.

BY THOMAS E. BROOKS.

Deatur and DeKalb county officers are in no way disheartened by the repudiation of the confession by Dimpie Nix, negress who was discharged from the McDowell home in Deatur a few days before the fatal fire early Tuesday morning in which Misses Willie Mattee and Marion, pretty and popular young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John M. McDowell, lost their lives, according to M. H. Phillips and O. G. McConnell, officers who are leading the investigation of the mysterious circumstances surrounding the fire.

The negroes, Dimpie Nix, her husband Johnny Nix, and his brother Bud Nix, were rushed to the Fulton county tower Wednesday night following the confession by the Nix woman that her husband told her after her discharge and previous to the fire that he was "going to get the McDowells
and make a big killing scrape out there" and that on the evening after the fatal fire he came to her sister's house where she was living and told,
"Well, the McDowells house burned
up last night and two of them girls burned up in it. I done my job well."

Check Up Alibis.
Officers were busy all Thursday checking up the alleged alibis
of the two negroes, Johnny and Bud Nix, implicated in the confession of Dimpie Nix, and it is understood that the claims of the negroes as to their actions on the night of the fatal blaze do not colli-
de with the findings of the officers.

DeKalb county authorities asserted Thursday that when they visited the Tower to quiz Dimpie Nix they found that Attorney Fred Harrison had been in consultation with the negroes held in connection with the crime and that the Nix woman was prepared to repudiate the confession she made Wednesday night. The officers claimed that the Nix negroes told them at the Tower that they had not retained
Mr. Harrison as counsel.

Had Received Call.
Attorney Harrison, when reached
Thursday night by phone at his home,
contradicted this statement by saying he has been secured to represent the negro woman. He stated that he received a telephone call late Wednesday night to go to the Fulton county tower.

DETECTIVES SEEK
BARBER-BANKER
IN BIG SWINDLE

Mexican Border Combed
for Man Alleged to Have Fleeced Investors of Million Dollars.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, February 22.—An immigrant from Italy of a dozen years ago who later became a barber in Chicago is being sought tonight along the Mexican border while bankers and state officials in the east and middle west trace his career in frenzied finance, a career which has already cost investors from a half million to a million dollars or more.

The missing barber-banker is Joseph M. Marcano, or Joseph B. Bata, a dapper man, 27 years old, just a little over five feet tall, and remarkably broad. "If you see a man about five feet two and almost three feet broad it's Marcano," a detective who is directing the search said today.

While detectives are searching for Marcano, who disappeared in Buffalo, N. Y., last Friday after he is alleged to have peddled nearly $200,000 worth of stolen securities, Frank L.
Taylor, ex-railroad fireman, who rose to the position of $50 a week president of the First National Bank of Warren, Mass., when Marcano obtained control of that institution, is awaiting arraignment tomorrow on a charge of embezzling national bank funds.

Taylor told operatives who arrested him that he at one time worked for the Burns Detective agency and also had been a secret agent of the department of justice.

Losses Are Heavy.

Burns agents here figure the known losses from Marcano's operations at $501,000 and say that they expect much more to appear before the investigation is complete.

Through manipulation of the funds
of the Niagara Life Insurance company of Buffalo, N. Y., they say investors have lost $248,000.

The closing of the Warren, Mass., bank last week revealed a shortage of $213,000. Taylor claims Marcano cleaned out the bank's vault and later peddled the securities in and around Buffalo.

The failure of the Mechanics and Merchants bank in Philadelphia, February 12, added another $130,000 to the total.

A New York congressman is said
by the detectives to have lost a sum estimated at from $150,000 to $200,000 through his faith in Marcano's schemes.

The detectives are also investigating the connection between a bank
at Wayauwaga, Wis., and the Buffalo Insurance company.

Securities formerly owned by the Wisconsin bank, in which Marcano is said to have obtained a controlling interest about six months ago, have turned up in banks in and around Buffalo, where they are said to have been pledged by the insurance company as security on loans.

Started in 1917.
Marcano's career as a financier,
according to Burns men, who have been following him for several years, started about 1917 or 1918, when he fetched a scheme for starting a new bank at Ottawa, Ill., and buying out the existing bank. As a result of that scheme he was indicted by the grand jury there for operation of a confidence game, but disappeared.

He was next heard from in California, where he was said to have been pledged by the Bank of Perris, Cal., failed after he had become connected with it. Losses of approximately $30,000 to depositors there were repaid. Burns men declare, when a Chicago attorney made a trip to the coast to square Marcano's accounts and save him from prosecution. The money used to repay the losers is said by the Burns men to have been obtained from Marcano's father-in-law, Abraham Goldman, a wealthy Chicagoan connected with the Furniture Exhibitor's exchange.

Thursday, Washington's birthday,
was a big day at the Southern Automobile show at the city auditorium.

Thousands who were given holidays
by commercial concerns in the city took advantage of the opportunity to visit the exhibit and many prospects
who were interested during the early part of the week made their final choice on this day.

A report made by the management
Thursday evening showed that 10,000 spectators and buyers attended the show during the day, which is declared by many of the most prominent men in the automotive industry
to be the most beautiful of its kind shown in America this year.

This is the largest attendance since the opening day, Saturday, when fully 20,000 were present. Interest in the show is constantly increasing as the close draws near, and officials are confident that all records will be smashed on Saturday, the last day.

22 Sales Are Made.

Twenty-two additional sales were reported Thursday, bringing the sales record since the opening up to a total of 89 cars sold. It is estimated by authorities that the expenditure involved in the purchase of the cars is approximately $100,000.

In addition to the new attendance and sales record, three of the most distinguished figures in the automo-

Thursday to visit the show.

The visitors are C. W. Nash, presi-

ROBERT RICHARDS

William Osler, Suspect in Assault Cases, Placed Under Arrest on Enter-

A dramatic incident occurred in the federal court room Thursday during the final stages of the trial of Robert H. Richards, who was convicted of violating Judge Sibley's strike injunction and sentenced to 6 months
in the Atlanta federal penitentiary, when William R. Osler entered the room and was immediately identified by E. L. Schell as the man who had attacked him on the night of September 15 when he and H. O. Overby, two Southern railway employees,
were beaten by alleged strikers.

Papers were procured immediately
by United States District Attorney Clint W. Hager for Osler, bringing the same charge brought against Richards, and the case was checked for

Witnesses Tell Story.

During the trial and conviction of Richards, the story of the disorder
last fall while the railway shopmen's strike was in progress was recited
by witnesses for the government who declared that Richards was the man who on September 15 attacked H. O.
Overby with a blackjack, inflicting injuries.

At the same time that Overby was attacked, according to testimony brought out, E. L. Schell, his companion, was also attacked. Authorities were told of the assault, and a few weeks ago papers were procured for Richards.

During the trial, both Overby and Schell identified Richards as the man

At Gastrop, a court-martial dealt with eleven German officials and other citizens all in one day. The charges being of a wide variety. The sentences ranged from 10,000 marks fine against an inn-keeper for failing to show a menu to military guests to two months imprisonment and 200,000 marks fine against a small town of official because certain supplies were not furnished. A Sharnhorst railway inspector received a fortnight's confinement because a railway engineer was allowed to drive a loaded coal train through this station at full speed into uncontrolled Germany.

In the meantime, the German Red Cross is making an effort to intercede for the Germans already sent to jail. Their efforts are especially in the interests of two of these men. One of them is Vice Lord Mayor Schaefer, of Essen, sentenced to two years imprisonment and fined 100,000 marks for failing to supply automobiles for the troops. The other is Recorder Guyenz, of the Essen Retail Grocers' association, charged with signing the circular urging merchants to refrain from selling to the French, and sentenced to two years and a fine of 8,000,000 marks.

These two men are alleged to be confined together in one cell which the Germans claim is seven cubic metres smaller in dimensions than the cell prescribed by the Germans for individual criminals of the lowest type. The Red Cross is said to have been refused the privilege to have representatives visit them, despite several applications to General Fournier.

Dr. Grunzer, president of the district, from the headquarters he established at Ellersfeld, after his expulsion has notified the lord mayor and diet of Essen that he forbids the formation of any police force to replace the one recently dissolved there. It is reported from Weimerskirchen, in the Lennep district of the English occupied zone, that the French troops at Betlehem are preventing food shipments going into unoccupied territory. The Germans also state that a rigid pass control has been instituted at the bridges over the Ruhr and the Lippe, every traveler in the street cars as well as on the steam roads being obliged to show his papers before being permitted to proceed.

ANTI-FRENCH MASS MEETING HELD

New York, February 22.—(By The Associated Press).—Among the 14,000 persons who crowded Madison Square Garden tonight at the mass protest of the committee of 100 against the Ruhr "invasion," not one champion appeared to plead the cause of France or to clasp a hand in admiration of her German policy.

The meeting was widely demonstrative. It was not the kind of demonstration, however, for which the police, stationed within and without the Garden, 650 strong, had been on guard.

There was an occasional concerted and prolonged hiss. There were a few cries of "Out with him!" when some speaker dared to suggest that Germany "should be made to pay her just debts."

The meeting, on the whole, was a continuous denunciation of France's premier, of her army, and of her reparations policy. Between speeches the spirit of the protest was carried on by telegrams from prominent men in other cities read by the chairman.

Remembering the wild disorders which broke out during similar mass "protests" held during the world war, the police had prepared to cope with almost any sort of an uprising that might develop.

There was not an arrest, however. The audience, apparently composed largely of native-born German and Irish-Americans, was sedate. No single heckler arose to ask a question. When disapproval was registered it was unanimous. In the midst of the meeting half of the police army was withdrawn.

Joseph A. Palma, chief of the special squad of the local secret service staff, who directed the hunt for the counterfeiters, which has resulted in 64 arrests, admitted yesterday that he found that a large number of criminals of all sorts were connected with the bogus money ring. Each wholesale distributing place was protected by a dozen armed gunmen, he said.

Arrests Made in Europe

International ramifications of the huge counterfeiting system which secret service operatives bared yesterday were indicated today when Joseph A. Palma, secret service agent in charge of the investigation, announced that 15 arrests have been made abroad.

Persons have been arrested in Egypt, Liverpool, Hamburg, Havana, in Austria, the Bahamas, Naples, Italy and France, as a result of clues given the police of the foreign countries by secret service agents here, Mr. Palma said.

In Naples two men and a woman were arrested with $50,000 in apocryphal money in their possession, but one of them escaped, Mr. Palma said. The dozen others taken into custody, he said, were all traced as a result of the investigation which culminated in the arrest here of 25 persons.

The leaders of the band operating in the United States are under arrest, Mr. Palma said, but a number of passers of bogus money are being sought. Already, he added, about 1,000 passers have been captured in American cities and have been tried or such charges.

The passers who are caught now, Mr. Palma explained, will be considered accessories after the fact and will be included in the blanket indictment covering the leaders of the gang and will thus be liable to a maximum penalty of 45 years imprisonment.

Two Rolls Royce cars have been sold, according to Julian Lifsey, of the Lifsey-Chambers company, one to a prominent surgeon, the other to a well-known south Georgian.

"I was here last year, and I will be back next year," said Harry Harper, the popular sales manager of Studebaker, Thursday at the Capital City club, where he met more than a hundred of his southern dealers.

The new Buick four sport roadster is one of the new models that makes them all look again. It's one of seven Buicks at the show. The other eight models are being shown at the branch. Salesmen are in attendance to explain Buick features until 10:30 evenings.

The auxiliary Buick show, being conducted at the branch, 241 Peachtree, is drawing its full share of visitors.

J. S. Johnson, of the Dill Manufacturing company, makers of the Dill motor car, who is the old-time Ford, is among the show visitors.

Jury Will Get Pollard Case Near Noon Today

Arguments to Jury Cut Short Thursday Night by Court Adjournment.

Richmond, Va., February 22.—The unexpected adjournment of court early tonight in the midst of the argument to the jury, prolonged the trial of Thomas Pollard, prominent young business man, charged with the murder of his former stenographer, Mrs. E. H. Ham, Richmond, Va., with two more addresses to be made by opposing counsel, there was little indication that the case would reach the jury before noon tomorrow.

Argument of the case opened late this afternoon with commonwealth attorney, Dave E. Satterfield, delivering the first address to the jury. The prosecutor spoke for more than an hour, directing his attack chiefly at the testimony of the defendant and of J. Mosby West, the only eye-witness to the killing.

Severely criticizing the defendant's past life and sarcastically commenting upon his testimony, Mr. Satterfield insisted that the shooting of Mrs. Richardson at the Pollard home on the night of December 11, was not an accident.

Attacks Prosecution. The commonwealth's attorney was followed by Hiram Smith, chief counsel for the defense. Mr. Smith contended that Mrs. Richardson was shot accidentally and stressed the testimony of witnesses who had told of threats she was alleged to have made against Pollard. He attacked the methods employed by the prosecution in obtaining evidence, offering particularly affidavits referred by the commonwealth. Attacking the testimony of J. Mosby West, also, Mr. Smith declared he did not believe West told all he knew about the case.

Judge David C. Richardson read his instructions to the jury during the afternoon. When court reconvened tomorrow, the argument will be resumed and it was expected tonight that the jury will get the case early in the afternoon.

The courtroom was packed today with eager throngs who went to the court house early in effort to get seats within view and hearing of the proceedings. The crowds overflowed to the corridors and stairways and dozens of persons were unable even to get inside the building. For hours they stood in line, waiting to the hope that eventually they would gain entrance to the little courtroom, where for ten days the case has been on trial.

The grand jury, of which F. H. Schomburg is foreman, was in session from 10 o'clock this morning until 1 o'clock this afternoon and found 26 true bills and one no bill. It was announced that the next sessions will be held Thursday of next week.

For the purpose of drafting plans for the entertainment of visiting Elks to Atlanta during the convention of the grand lodge to be held there in the coming summer, a number of grand officers, including D. W. Brown, Albany district deputy grand exalted ruler of Georgia, Harry G. Butler, president of the Georgia Elks' association; John C. McClellan, past president of the association, and T. B. Lamar, Columbia grand secretary, met at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Elks' home in West Eleventh street.

In honor of the presence in Columbus of the party of grand officers, Columbus Lodge No. 111, B. P. O. E., tonight held a mammoth initiation in which more than 25 candidates received degrees.

The date of the initiation had formerly been set for some time hence. Jim Malavis, proprietor of the Metropolitan restaurant, was arrested this afternoon by Police Detective Lum Woods on a criminal warrant charging assault with intent to murder, sworn out by Roy Sames, whose little daughter Malavis is alleged to have run down and seriously injured on the Talbotton road Tuesday afternoon.

Malavis was turned over to Sheriff J. A. Beard and was placed in $1,500 bail, with preliminary hearing set for 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon in municipal court.

Ellas Howe, the inventor of the sewing machine, was born in Spencer, Mass., July 9, 1819, and died in Brooklyn, N. Y., October 3, 1897. He lived with his father, who was both farmer and miller, till 1838, working upon the farm and in the mill and attending the district school during the winters. He then learned the trade of machinist, and experimented in inventing a sewing machine. The model was completed and the patent issued September 10, 1846. A patent was also taken out in England, but from this the inventor realized nothing. After constructing four machines in the United States he visited England in 1847, remaining two years. He returned to Boston entirely destitute, and resumed his trade for the support of his family. From this period until 1854 he was involved in expensive law suits, when the principal infringers of his patents acknowledged his rights and arranged to manufacture sewing machines under license from him. After this he made a large fortune from his invention. He served as a private in the 17th Connecticut volunteers during the civil war. He was the recipient of the Legion of Honor cross and many medals.

MAN CONFESSES TO FOUR MURDERS, POLICE REPORT

Baltimore, Md., February 22.—Charles F. McCandless, 62, of Hurst, Texas, who confessed, according to the police, he killed four men in Texas and New Mexico between 1900 and 1910 and who claims there is a $10,000 reward for his arrest, surrendered here today. He is said to have told authorities he was tired of living under assumed names and that he wishes to visit his 84-year-old mother in Hurst, Texas, who wants him to atone for his misdeeds before she dies.

McCandless also claims to have killed a fifth man, whose name he does not know. This killing, his signed confession states, occurred at a militia camp in Arizona in 1910, from which he deserted. The list of men killed, as given in his confession, follows: A. Hill Walton, at Turnersville, Texas, in 1900.

An unnamed "highwayman" at Stephenville, Texas, in 1908.

"Bill" Truck, alias "the" Dunree, at Clovis, New Mexico, in 1910.

It was the murder of Woods, McCandless told the police, that the $10,000 reward was offered.

A Clean Sweep in BROOMS

We Cannot Guarantee these Prices Longer than Two Days

TODAY AND SATURDAY

Less than a year ago broom corn was selling at $100 per ton. Six months ago the price began to steadily advance. Today broom corn has reached a price of $440 per ton—an increase of 340 per cent—and the supply is so short that in all probability prices will be higher.

But we are giving you the advantage of our low prices—though there has been a tremendous advance in raw material. But you had better not put off buying brooms at the prices we are quoting for today and Saturday.

OUR BROOMS

Are built to a standard, and that standard maintained at all times. Only the best of Oklahoma and Illinois broom corn is used. It is the highest grade of broom corn grown. It is all cured correctly immediately after cutting, and upon arrival at the warehouses of the broom manufacturers is treated under the Williams process, which gives it uniform color and adds 50 per cent to its wearing qualities. Each and every broom is inspected and weighed, so the guarantee is given to the consumer of a balanced uniform broom. Our brooms have a "full sweep"—no short corn at the handle. They are dried thoroughly to eliminate molding at the seams, which causes decay of the twine, shortening the life of the broom.

Buy your brooms today while you can escape the much higher prices, which seem inevitable soon.

URGES CHLORINE GAS TO DESTROY WEEVILS

William S. Cox Declares It Is Only Effective Gas Solution.

Advocating the use of chlorine gas as a means of destroying the boll weevil and declaring that it had rendered unusually satisfactory results in experiments, William S. Cox, president of Cox college, of College Park, Ga., addressed Wednesday at the meeting of the local boll weevil conference, declared that it was the only gas solution that could be used effectively against the pest.

"Fighting the Weevil With Gas" was the subject of Mr. Cox, who detailed results of experiments and explained the effect of this method following several practical applications on cotton bolls.

"In my experiments," he declared, "I found that the weevil in the presence of this gas is the first of all the insects to succumb to its treatment. The boll weevil breathes, not through his mouth or mouth, but through his sides under his wings and seems easily affected by this gas."

Is Cheapest Gas.

"Chlorine gas is the cheapest gas we have. It is extracted from common salt, and we use the formula chloride of lime. Lime, like salt, is cheap and is universally found and these two products cannot be cornered in by a syndicate."

"On a farm in Bullock county I got the consent of the negroes to apply this gas with very little trouble. They had used other poisons on themselves and also on their stock, and did no good. I sent to get a bottle, had it thoroughly cleaned and dried and told them we would make a demonstration of it and see whether it would kill the weevil or not. If it would kill, we would apply it, and if it did not kill we would not apply it. So we put six weevils in the bottle. I then took an old piece of cotton and dipped it in the solution that we had mixed—one pound of powder preparation, and 8 gallons of water. I shook off the solution so that it would not drop and used the old cotton simply as a stopper to the bottle. Several of the hands performed this same experiment and seemed to doubt our sincerity in this operation. Next morning they came over to the farm house laughing and saying, 'Boss, you sho' is not us; that stuff kills the weevil, and we will try it.'"

Had Top Crop.

"Anyone who would ride over this large farm of cotton in Alabama would be impressed with the sight, that wherever the gas was applied we had a top crop and on the farms where it was not applied, there was no top crop."

"We know that the chlorine is an army gas, the first the Germans used in the trenches. Two or three years ago when we began to experiment and get results, we wrote to Washington about it; the report came to us that the government said that no gas could be used successfully to destroy the boll weevil. Last year the government experts reported that the chlorine gas was the only gas that would produce good results in controlling the boll weevil.

"If the weevil is dropped in the powder and taken out and placed in a bottle, you will find that he has absorbed enough gas to kill him in a few hours. This may be called theory, but we have had some practical results from the many testimonials that have come to us in the last year where several parties tried it out, in each case with marked success. We have an exhibit at Cox college which will show that it will protect the entire cotton stalk and you will find that the top crop is saved as well. The weevil, as you know, will always get the top crop if nothing else."

"It is not our purpose this season to commercialize the process of killing the boll weevil by gas. Our plan is to establish agents and to instruct them how to use the gas method and for them to demonstrate to the farmers how it is done."

PLAN INJUNCTION TO PREVENT ORDER ABOLISHING LASH

Reports that one or two of the larger counties of the state employing convicts on road work have threatened injunction proceedings to stop abolition of the whipping of prisoners.

The current in Atlanta Thursday, Fulton county was said to be one of the counties contemplating such a step.

Sometimes this week Governor Hardwick is expected to issue an executive order abolishing the use of the whip in prison camps in the state. He has declared that he would so act if the attorney-general ruled that the governor must approve or disapprove prison camp rules now in effect and Attorney-General Napier has so held.

The governor is said to be preparing a proclamation based on the action of the attorney-general.

The Atlanta committee on church cooperation, through a sub-committee of which Charles N. Walker is chairman, inaugurated the movement to abolish the flogging of convicts.

Watkins to Head Drive to Clean And Paint City

Total of $139,044 Expended in This Work in 1922 Campaign.

Preliminary steps toward instituting a "clean up and paint up" campaign in Atlanta from March 15 to April 1, were taken Thursday when Benjamin D. Watkins general chairman, Mayor Walter A. Sims appointed man of the committee to have charge of the work.

The movement is endorsed by the chamber of commerce, Federation of Women's Clubs, junior chamber of commerce and various civic clubs of the city, and efforts will be made this year to make the campaign even more effective than it was last year.

A total of $139,044 was expended in the work last year, of which $85,429 went for materials and $53,615 for labor. Hubert E. Lee of the junior chamber of commerce has been designated as secretary of the committee handling the work.

Mayor Sims has written letters relative to the work, and the chamber of commerce is also sending out publicity matter regarding it. A general meeting of the committee will be called by Mayor Sims within a few days, at which all interested in the movement will have opportunity to begin work.

ONE SAFE IS STOLEN AND ANOTHER ROBBED

Beavers Considering Plan to Increase His "Plain-clothes" Force.

One safe was stolen and another "cracked" by robbers during Wednesday night.

The filling station of the Gulf Refining company, 568 Whitehall street, was entered by burglars who removed the small safe from the office through a rear window. Only $85 in money was left in the safe, although it contained a number of checks and gasoline ticket books.

The Miller Rubber company, 115 Marietta street, suffered a loss of $70 in money and $25 worth of shirts when thieves entered their place, cracking the safe, which was an old type.

The lock on the door of the filling station of the Standard Oil company, at Whitehall and Humphries streets, was picked by a clever thief, who, after ransacking the office in search for money, apparently left in disgust, not taking time to close the door behind him. Nothing of value was reported taken.

Mrs. F. L. Ains, of Hopkinstown, Mass., reported that a snatch thief stole her purse, which contained several souvenirs.

Following the recent activities of bandits plans are being considered by Chief James L. Beavers and Captain T. O. Sturdivant for having various beats over the city traversed by plain-clothes officers in addition to the regular uniform squad.

JENKINS IS TRIED ON MURDER CHARGE FOR NEGRO'S DEATH

Sylvania, Ga., February 22.—Joe Jenkins, a young man, went on trial here this afternoon at 3 o'clock charged with the murder of "Coo" Jones, an aged negro, killed near here last December.

It is stated that Jenkins, who was apprehended several weeks later in Colorado and brought back to stand trial, will plead self-defense.

The crime with which Jenkins is charged invoked the indignation of both races around Sylvania. The aged negro, well known throughout the countryside, was killed when he refused to aid in getting Jenkins' car out of the mud, according to eye-witnesses.

Jenkins, however, claims that the negro attempted to cut him with a knife. He says it was the negro's knife which he used to cut Jones' hand from his body, after shooting him.

The trial is attracting considerable attention in Sylvania, being one of few cases in which a white man was brought back to stand trial for the slaying of a negro in this vicinity. It probably will take all of tomorrow to hear the case.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS CELEBRATE BIRTH OF WASHINGTON

Special exercises commemorating the one hundred and ninth birthday of George Washington, first president of the United States, were observed Thursday in the public schools. Virtually every school in the city, as well as the state and nation, joined in the celebration.

At the Girls' High school students and faculty observed the day with an "open house" program, parents and friends of the school attending. Banks and other public institutions of the city were closed during the day and the postoffice, after making two deliveries of mail, closed at noon. Courts in session, however, remained open as well as the state capitol and city hall.

Mrs. Littleton will accompany Mr. Littleton to Atlanta. They will stop at the Georgian Terrace.

Action of the property owners followed a meeting held in Mr. Wright's office Wednesday. The petition will contain the names of all property owners on Spring street, it was stated.

GUNNIN SURRENDERS

Charged With Robbery of Postal Substation.

William B. Gunnin, charged with robbing the West Peachtree postal substation on September 11, 1919, was lodged in Fulton tower Wednesday after having been returned to Atlanta by Deputy Marshall E. P. Beau from Columbus.

Gunnin was arrested nearly four years ago by Officers W. A. Goode and M. C. Williams. Postal Inspector Clyde Fleming handled the case for the postal authorities.

Gunnin was released on bond, and did not appear for trial. The bond was forfeited. He gave himself up to Deputy Bell in Columbus Tuesday.

For several months, according to information from Columbus, Gunnin was employed by an automobile concern in Columbus. He claimed that he thought the charge against him had been not proved.

Gunnin was arrested along with Henry Meyer, on the same charge. Loss of the postoffice in the robbery amounted to only about $14 in stamps and money, and the drug store in which the station was located reported a loss of $75.

ATLANTA NEWSPAPERS ENTERTAIN AD MEN

Journal Radio, Constitution Singers and Fuzzy Woodruff on Program.

The three Atlanta newspapers Thursday afternoon furnished the entertainment program for the regular luncheon of the Atlanta Advertising club in the cafe of the Chamber of Commerce. It was largely attended.

The program was opened by The Journal, which presented by radio Lamblin Kay, announcer of The Journal's radio station, and Ernest Rogers, The Journal's reporter-singer. They gave several numbers on the regular noon program of The Journal and the program was received in the cafe for the ad men.

The Constitution's part of the program was in charge of George C. Congdon, Jr., director of The Constitution's radio department. Mrs. Rose L. Mathews, soprano, and Mrs. Florence Cassiday, Mrs. Mathews' accompanist, were heard in three selections, one of which was "Mighty Lak a Rose," by Frank L. Stanton, sung in honor of Mr. Stanton, whose birthday anniversary it was.

Fuzzy Woodruff, of The Georgian, concluded the program with a humorous talk on "Truth" that was heartily applauded.

TRIBUTE TO BE PAID FRANK STANTON TODAY

Special Meeting to Be Called by Writer's Club to Honor Poet.

Tribute to Frank L. Stanton, poet laureate of the south, will be paid by a number of speakers at a special called meeting of the Writers' club in the club rooms of the city club, on Poplar street between Peachtree and Broad streets, at 4 o'clock, Friday afternoon.

Everyone interested in writers, or writing, is invited to attend. Dugby Cowles, vice-president of the club, called the meeting for the purpose of honoring Mr. Stanton, the occasion being the day after his 60th birthday.

James A. Holloman will deliver a lecture on "What the Writers' Club Can Do and Ought to Do," and the remainder of the program will be given over to tributes to Mr. Stanton. Harry Harman, leading Atlanta poet, will be one of the speakers, as will be Miss Mary Brent Whiteside, second vice president of the club. Miss Whiteside and Mr. Harman are both well-known poets. Fuzzy Woodruff is also on the program for an address. This is the first meeting of the Writers' club since several months ago. Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie, president of the club, who died recently, was taken ill several months ago, and activities of the organization were hampered because of this fact.

GOODWYN TO GIVE STATEMENT TODAY ON FREIGHT RATES

On behalf of southern carriers, D. M. Goodwyn, freight traffic manager for the Louisville & Nashville railroad, will present a general statement on freight rates Friday morning when the southern class rate investigation being conducted at the Piedmont hotel by the interstate commerce commission is resumed.

After W. P. Otterson, comptroller of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railway, presented an exhibit which showed the cost of handling less than carload traffic at freight terminals, the hearing recessed at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon in observance of Washington's birthday.

In Atlanta terminals, the exhibit showed the cost of handling less than carload shipments is 12.125 cents per 100 pounds; in Chattanooga, 12.139 cents; at Rome, 15.05 cents; at Huntsville, Ala., 12.22 cents, and at Calhoun, Ga., 17.90 cents. The figures were based on a study of costs made for a fourteen-day period in October, 1921.

Electric irons are used to remove stains from the wall.

Vital to you!

The Relation of KOLYNOS to INFLUENZA

PUBLIC announcement has just been made that the influenza germ (bacterium pneumosintes) has been isolated.

This is of vital importance to you, to every member of your family and every one of your friends.

It has been shown that its visitation weakens the surface of the lung tissue, leaving it denuded and unprotected against highly dangerous attacks of pneumonia and bronchitis germs, with which the air is filled during the grip and pneumonia season.

During and after an attack of influenza, or grip, the suggested method of protecting the weakened lungs against these pneumonia and bronchitis germs is to take prompt and constant measures to control these deadly germs in the throat and mouth, before they get to the lungs.

With startling clearness your duty stands out. Every day these, and many other dangerous disease germs, enter your upper air passages—but your system, in health, fights them off.

During this season of extra peril, at least, you must make a daily habit of some adequate act of mouth hygiene.

Use Kolynos Daily, Without Let-Up—These Germs Never Cease Their Attack

KOLYNOS—the daily habit of using Kolynos Dental Cream—will very materially assist in keeping you safe. Repeated laboratory experiments in America and Europe, conducted by able scientists, have shown that a solution of Kolynos Dental Cream—such a solution as you produce in brushing your teeth with this hygienic dentifrice—will destroy and render harmless a large proportion of the pneumo-cocci, or pneumonia bacilli, which lodge in your mouth and throat.

Kolynos was given this healthful germicidal property primarily for the purpose of destroying germs and preventing tooth decay. Yet years of experience, among millions of users in 77 countries, have clearly indicated that the habitual Kolynos user is less susceptible to the dreaded diseases of the air passages—influenza, pneumonia and bronchitis, than is the non-user.

When Danger Lurks Everywhere
Why Hesitate to Protect Yourself?

Kolynos is a grit-less, wonderfully smooth and effective tooth polisher and preserver—a preparation you should be using at least twice a day because of its acknowledged superiority in performing these offices, if for no other reason.

It is vouched for in this respect and used by leading dentists and dental scientists the world over.

But when, in addition, the delightful habit of its daily use erects a daily barrier against the entrance into your system of deadly germs, why hesitate?

You are using some dentifrice, if only for pride. Help your physician as well as your dentist. Take advantage of a life-long habit—the brushing of your teeth—to help insure your general health—perhaps your life itself. Why not buy a tube of Kolynos today—or at least send for a proof-bearing sample?

While influenza is prevalent, it is safer to go to the nearest drug store and buy a full-size tube, so you may use it immediately; but if you wish, a sample will be sent you free. Fillout the coupon and send it in.

And bear in mind that this germicidal effect of Kolynos extends to the tooth-brush, as well as your mouth and throat—your tooth-brush, in which, otherwise, millions of dangerous germs may propagate, to be re-communicated to your mouth and lungs.

Stop trifling with this serious question. Get the dentifrice which mouth hygiene and bodily hygiene indicate—which scientists in all civilized countries recommend—Kolynos Dental Cream.

It is tooth insurance plus health insurance.

GREAT AUTO SHOW HIGHLY PRAISED

and the Buick Motor company, declared the show to be the most beautiful he had visited this year, which visits, he said, included all of the largest New York shows.

"Never have I seen a more beautiful show," Mr. Nash declared, "and the decorator deserves especial commendation for his work."

Asked concerning trade conditions in the south in the automobile industry, he said: "The south is fast forging to the front, and although this section has suffered severely from the weevil, her people are now recognizing the importance of getting away from the 'one-crop' idea and the resulting prosperity is being felt in the automotive industry and in other channels of trade as well."

"For the past few months the sales in the south and southeast have far exceeded those in the middle west, and Atlanta is beyond doubt the greatest automobile distributing center in the south. This is shown by the fact that in 1921 out of the 40 different distributing centers we maintain, Atlanta ranked 17th in importance, based on the number of annual sales. Now, however, only eight of the 40 distributing centers outrank her."

Mr. Nash will be the principal speaker Friday at a luncheon given in his honor at the Capital City club, district and territorial dealers from all parts of the southeast will attend the luncheon. While in Atlanta, Mr. Nash and his wife are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Martin, president of the Martin-Nash Motor company.

Mr. Rice Arrives.

Mr. Rice, who arrived Thursday evening, will be the guest of R. A. Parker, president of the Cadillac Company of Atlanta. He will leave Atlanta for other points today.

"The middle west and the south in all probability will show the largest increase in sales this year, because of recent indications of a business revival in these sections," Mr. Rice stated to a Constitution reporter Thursday evening at the auditorium.

"Sales for the past two months have exceeded those for the same time last year, which was the record sales year in the 20 years history of the Cadillac," he said, "in fact it was the largest year in the automobile industry."

"The show is very pleasing and attractive, and the atmosphere is ideal," Mr. Rice stated that this is his first visit to Atlanta in 14 years and he marveled at the wonderful growth of the city in this time.

Mr. Hannon is also optimistic over the prospects for an unusual volume of business this year and states that the show is ideal in every respect. While here Mr. Hannon will be entertained by the local representatives of the Oakland Motor company.

Harry Harper, general sales manager of the Studebaker corporation, was principal speaker at a luncheon Thursday at the Capital City club. More than one hundred Studebaker enthusiasts from all sections of the southeast attended the meeting. Mr. Harper told of the progress made in the automobile industry during the past few years and predicted that 1923 would prove to be the most progressive of all years, both in scientific and commercial lines.

WED SIX MONTHS, BALTIMORE COUPLE SURPRISE FRIENDS

Baltimore, Md., February 22.—(Special.)—Baltimore society was startled today by the announcement that Charles T. Kemp, Jr., and Betty Merryman, one of last season's debutantes, had eloped September 27 to Hagerstown, Md., where they had been married.

Mr. Kemp is a brother of the late Mrs. Robert Kemp Slaughter, who was considered one of the most beautiful matrons of Atlanta, Ga. The couple had kept their secret well until today when it was given away by Mrs. Kemp's mother, who learned of it yesterday for the first time.

"My mother had been rather ill for some time and we had planned on starting today by the announcement that Charles T. Kemp, Jr., and Betty Merryman, one of last season's debutantes, had eloped September 27 to Hagerstown, Md., where they had been married."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Kemp, Jr., are fond of sports, the groom being a member of a leading hunt club of Baltimore.

Charge Defamation Of Character in Libel Suit in Thomasville

Thomasville, Ga., February 22.—(Special.)—The sensational libel suit was filed today by Homer Williams, of this city, chairman of the board of county commissioners, against Dr. T. M. McIntosh, one of Thomasville's oldest and most prominent physicians, for $50,000 for alleged defamation of character.

This suit is the outcome of several articles alleged to have been written and circulated by Dr. McIntosh in which it was charged that Mr. Williams had used his office to further his own interests, charging that he had tried to sell property owned by him to the county for a stockade, had hired his own mules to the county for a large price when others had been offered free for their feed, and various other charges, all of which Mr. Williams emphatically denies and brings suit accordingly.

who had wielded the blackjack on that night. Schell testified that he also was beaten up on the occasion, but that he had never seen the man who hit him since that night.

Defense of Richards attempted to establish that he was attempting to quiet the disorder and that he was not the man who struck Overby. Witnesses for the government were positive of his identity, however, and a verdict of guilty on two counts was returned by the jury.

Still protesting his innocence, Richards selected the federal penitentiary in preference to the Clarke county jail, and Judge W. I. Grubb, presiding over the criminal division, pronounced sentence.

During the trial of Richards, agents of the department of justice, in cooperation with the district attorney, laid a trap for Osler, whom they suspected as having been implicated in the disorder of September 15.

A summons was issued for him to appear as witness in the case. When he entered the court room, according to court attaches, Schell immediately pointed him out as the one who had attacked him at the time he and Overby were attacked.

Richards was the ninth defendant to go on trial on charges of violating the strike injunction, and was the sixth to be convicted.

Four of the five previously convicted on charges of this kind are now serving a six-month sentence at the federal penitentiary, and T. O. Hubbard, the fifth to be convicted, is under bond, having appealed his case.

LIFE RESTORED IN BABY BOY

heart. The drug, administered with a hypodermic needle, caused an irregular fluttering of the pulse. Massage and other emergency measures established regular heartbeats and breathing, and soon the child's body was tingling with life.

Dr. Philip Minberg, physician attending Mrs. Bertha Isaacson, gave a detailed account of the extraordinary experiment, which may result in the use of adrenalin to restore life to drowned persons.

The boy was the second of twins

born to Mrs. Isaacson. The first was a 2-1/2 pound girl, normal in every way except weight. When the boy, weighing three pounds, was examined, his heart had stopped, his lungs were inactive. "Asphyxiation of the new born," was the decision.

But the physician saw hope. With a needle he pierced the wall of the infant's side and injected the extract of adrenalin into the heart. Soon the veins in the tiny body grew pink. The heart was then drained of the drug by massaging, and 1-1/2 ounces of blood was taken away to relieve pressure. A pulmotor started the lungs functioning. Within a few minutes the baby had a fair chance to live.

Since then the twins have been warmed in an incubator and fed on milk. Dr. Minberg sees no reason why they cannot develop into normal healthy children.

A splendid system builder.

Stomach Trouble?

Health Is Most Important to You.

Columbus, Ga.—"Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is certainly a grand medicine for stomach trouble. I have suffered greatly all my life from a disordered stomach. My food seemed to set so heavy, no matter what I ate. I have taken many of the medicines advertised for this trouble, but none of them has ever come up to Golden Medical Discovery for giving prompt and lasting relief. Whenever I have a sluggish liver, with sick-headaches and constipation, I have found Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets a very efficient remedy. They do not gripe or cause any other distressing condition such as a great many pills do."—Mrs. Laura Kimbrough, 3808 Erlene Avenue.

Obtain this Medical Discovery of Doctor Pierce's at your nearest drug store, in tablets or liquid, or send 10c to Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package, and write for free medical advice.—(adv.)

The site has been approved by Lincoln McConnell, senior executive, H. G. Hunter, regional scout executive, and by the council of Boy Scouts. The site will be known as "Scout Camp Al Sihah."

The Shriners in attendance, who numbered about seventy-five, were all enthusiastic over the project and immediately authorized the purchase, C. A. McAllister, to make the purchase.

AMBITIOUS PEOPLE URGED TO RUSH

Persons who join today are on the same footing as members who have been in a week or two weeks.

The two special prizes consist of a handsome Anderson Six touring car, valued at $1,295.00, delivered in Atlanta, and a nifty Gardner touring car valued at $1,075.00, delivered here. Both the special prizes are standard-grade, handsomely built and finished cars which the most discriminating man or woman would delight to own.

The special prize campaign will close at the end of the 19-day period mentioned above. Not a single day of extended time will be allowed, so those who desire to enter their names and carry off one of the big special prizes must act quickly.

The relative strength of his or her determination to be a winner will decide the success with which the candidate meets.

No Interference.

The special prize campaign will in no way interfere with competition for the original list of 16 beautiful capital and district automobile awards and 24 cash prizes, the club members point out. Regular and bonus votes at the rate of 75,000 extra votes for every $25 in subscriptions sent in—and 3,000 extra votes for every dollar above the $25 minimum—will be credited to club members, according to original rules of the club.

"Advantage in the special prize offer, if there is any advantage," the club declares, "lies with new club members who enroll themselves to represent territory hitherto unrepresented by active campaigners. No one has touched their territory so far as securing subscriptions to 'The Standard Southern Newspaper' is concerned, and, unlike old club members, they have a perfectly fresh, clear field in which to operate."

Chance to Win Two Cars.

"On the other hand, club members already enrolled now have a chance to win two automobiles—one of the special prizes and one of the sixteen capital or district club prizes included in the original list. If they are up and doing they can make this great opportunity drive two handsome cars up to their door."

The club campaign does not expire until March 31, and now stands on the threshold of its biggest and best weeks. Judges in all its awards will be the five officials of big Atlanta department stores recently appointed. They are:

List of Judges.

J. P. Allen, president of J. P. Allen & Co.; Beaumont Davidson, president of Davidson-Paxon-Stokes company; W. H. Brittain, president of the J. M. High company; Lucian York, general manager of M. ## Atlanta Business Man Thanks Tanlac For His Health and Success

A. F. Almand Declares It Ended Stomach Trouble Eight Years Ago and Gave Him Strength to Win Out in Business.

No higher tribute could be paid the efficiency of a medicine than that paid the merits of Tanlac yesterday by A. F. Almand, well-known wholesale and retail seed and grain merchant, of 271-273 Peters street, Atlanta, who unhesitatingly stated that he owes both his present good health and business success to the use of the Premier Preparation some eight years ago.

But, let Mr. Almand tell his own experience in his own words. Following is his statement:

"I have every reason to feel thankful to Tanlac, for I can attribute both my present good health and business success to my decision to try the medicine some eight years ago. In fact, I was one of the first people in Atlanta to take the treatment and publicly endorse it and that endorsement still holds good."

"Referring to my condition that caused me to first use Tanlac: For more than a year I had suffered from stomach trouble and indigestion and was all run-down. My nerves were all upset, I had a sluggish liver, was also troubled with biliousness and felt tired out most of the time. To sum it up in a few words, at times I was in such a condition that I just could not give my business the attention it needed and seemed to be gradually growing worse."

"However, after taking the first few bottles of Tanlac my troubles disappeared and I have not had a touch of them to this good day. Hundreds of people have written me about the good qualities of Tanlac."

well-known wholesale and retail seed and grain merchant who states that he owes both his present good health and business success to Tanlac—Nature's Greatest Tonic.

And I have never failed to recommend it. The treatment is certainly wonderful and I don't believe, any one can go wrong by taking it. Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold. (Advertisement.)

stead of a civil service appointment, but has not done so, has issued an open signed statement "to the people of Georgia," as follows:I desire to make an appeal to the sense of square dealing of the people of Georgia.
The latter part of October President Harding did me the high honor to appoint me postmaster at Gainesville by executive order. The intention was to send my name to the senate immediately upon the expiration of the term of the incumbent, postmaster on November 21, but the Georgia senators interposed vigorous and determined opposition to my appointment, to such extent as to cause the impression that they would if possible defeat my confirmation.The following letter from Senator Townsend, chairman of the senate committee on postoffices and post roads, fully reveals the opposition of the Georgia senators:

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17, 1922.

My Dear Mrs. Longstreet:

I have your courteous favor of the 16th, and while I dislike very much to attempt to state what my colleagues in the senate say to me, yet I think I am justified in stating that both the present
senators from Georgia came to me unsolicited and urged that you be not appointed postmaster at Gainesville. They stated that they could not consent to your appointment, and that they were, in fact, being that theydid not think it would be a wise thing to appoint you to this place under the circumstances. I do not recall that they openly said they would make objection on personal grounds in case you were nominated, but I got but one inference from what they said, and that is that they would resist your confirmation very vigorously. Respectfully yours,
"CHARLES E. TOWNSEND."Delayed Sending Name.
President Harding, in the very fitness of his civility, has delayed sending my name to the senate, hoping the Georgia senators would withdraw opposition and submit my confirmation in a manner befitting my high standing.Since the opposition developed by Geo-
gia's senators the patrons of the Gainesville office have furnished me a testimonial which says in part:"The splendid service you gave won the praise of all our people. To your administration we owe our city delivery, the wide extension of rural delivery, the benefit of this northeastern section and our beneficial federal postoffice building. And when you turned over the office to your successor in the beginning of President Wilson's first term his service was the pride of our city."This testimonial was signed by the mayor, president of the chamber of commerce and various city and county officials, prominent business men, college professors, and military, doctors and men of leadership in every walk of life.I feel that I have as much right to hold President Harding's commission as any living Georgian, and I appeal to the people of Georgia to support me.The great empire state of the south by withholding opposition to me. To refuse me confirmation is a stigma that Georgia
senators should not feel privileged to place upon the name I bear. The republican sen-derstand is why they do not have pajamas in the jails where he "visits" nightly. The latest "charge" to be answered to is a statutory charge. He was nabbed in Detroit and is making the return trip in the day time, while sleeping in various jails at night.He is registered for safekeeping

by Detective George Karmann, who demanded of Karmann that that officer furnish him with pajamas. When Detective Karmann explained that that city never in the history of the city jail has any lodger therein wore pajamas, Pullen was amazed.It is most astonishing," he said.
According to the deputies who have Pullen in charge, he is the fiancé of a millionaire's daughter. However, according to their account, the father of the girl is not at all anxious to accept Pullen as a prospective son-in-law and therefore has expended considerable money in financing the search that was made for him here. It is alleged,
he became involved with another Georgian girl.Meanwhile, the deputies say, the millionaire's daughter refuses to believe the charge made against Pullen
and expects him to vindicate himself.DETECTIVES SEEK
from sight for some time. Burns operatives say, he went to Mexico,
and later to Italy, where he became a purchasing agent for the Italian government.After the war he reappeared in America, and obtained the confidence of a large number of ex-soldiers of Italian parentage. In this stage of his career the detectives describe him
as wearing a flamboyant purple tie which furnished background for an emblem, more than an inch in diameter, of the high degree of a worldwide secret order. The Burns operatives say Marcino boasted he was among those present when the same degree was conferred on President Harding by an Ohio lodge.His after-the-war rise was me-tastic. Backed by the money of his father-in-law, he branched out into many money-making schemes. At various times he attempted to obtain control of two Chicago banks and singular institutions in other cities, and did eventually buy up the Bison Holding company, of Buffalo, and through that concern obtained control of the Niagara Insurance company. Next, he bought control of the Philadelphia bank by depositing with it funds of the insurance company, following up this step by borrowing $125,000 from a New York bank on the strength of his Philadelphia deposit, which is said to have been withdrawn and used elsewhere.Buys Warren Bank.
The Warren, Mass., bank, was purchased next and Taylor installed as president. That Marcino was an economical bank owner was indicated
when detectives today questioned Taylor about the intimate details of the bank's operation. Marcino, he said, couldn't afford to hire a president and cashier, both at salaries of $40 a week, so dispensed with the cashier and made Taylor president at $50 a week. He was assisted by an assistant cashier.Marcino's operations, however, were not always successful, according to the agency. He attempted to obtain control of a bank near Muncie, Indiana, and lost $8,000 to $10,000. The Burns men say Marcino later employed an Indiana banker as an official of the Philadelphia bank.For the last two years another nemesis has dogged his footsteps, the detectives claim. Wherever he appeared and started operations they said, private detectives revealed his identity. As a result, they claim, Marcino was forced time and again
to take up loans running into hundreds of thousands of dollars and the operation of his schemes was seriously curtailed.The Burns men say that a year or so ago when Marcino had been traced to Chicago they summoned the sheriff and prosecutor from Ottawa, Ill., to bring up the old indictment and a warrant was issued there. A meeting was arranged and Marcino confronted by the down-state officials, but according to the detective agency officials, Marcino denied his identity
so strenuously that he talked himself
out of custody and the sheriff returned home empty handed.John W. Worthington, "wolf of La Salle street, whose financial schemes resulted in his sentence here today
as a party to the Ottawa deal, the Burns office claim, Worthington and Marcino, the detectives say, went to Ottawa, where Worthington posed
as the president of a Chicago bank much patronized by men dealing with the stockyards.WASHINGTON HONORED

Twenty thousand barrels of rosin and several hundred barrels of turpentine
were burned in the yards and sheds
of the Naval Stores and Warehouse company, at Goulet, a suburb of Pensacola tonight. The sheds and equipment also were destroyed. The loss was estimated at $300,000, covered by insurance.The storage tanks with 3,500 barrels of turpentine were saved by the hard work of volunteers who rolled the burning barrels away from the vicinity of the tanks.Several engines of the Louisville & Nashville railroad and all fire apparatus from Pensacola were used in fighting the flames.The origin of the fire, which was not gotten under control until late tonight, has not been determined.Most powerful high-pressure steam

the expenditure of funds followed his board of education."It seems to me," asserted Mayor Sims, "that the board of education is not so hard up for funds as they have led council to believe, judging from the manner in which they are spending money. In addition to their 26 per cent apportionment of the ad-

board has received in special appropriations and from other sources a total amount equal to 44 per cent of the gross ad valorem revenues derived by the city in taxes."Council recently appropriated an extra $61,987.53 to the education
board for payment of free text books.

that all told the board has received

Carroll nodded his appreciation. "Dandy work, Jim. And, of course, you've handled everything just right. It just about removed every semblance of motive from Heston—or Averyt—unless something cropped up at the lodge and he struck at her suddenly . . . which, I'm free to confess, sounds mighty unlikely. The only thing I don't like is the result; if it clears Heston, it leaves Stan Forrest in deeper than he ever has been. However, he rose, 'let's toddle in and have a chat with Heston.' Heston—or Averyt—rose politely as they entered his cell. He was pale and dignified, and he listened attentively to Carroll's statement of facts regarding himself—

"Both you and Miss Devarney have accused me of working solely to trick you into admission, Averyt," he finished. "That is, of course, ridiculous—although I'd rather see Forrest cleared than almost anything in the world."

"But we've got enough of your personal history to remove a motive for your crime—that is, unless something cropped up at the last minute, you had apparently no reason for killing Mrs. Forrest. Therefore I'd like to beg of you to be honest with us. I'm not going to cross-question you; you can talk or not as you wish. About this stock jobbing proposition, Sullivan assures me that you've been the fall guy and that they can clear your skirts entirely—save insofar as you'll be laughed at for being a simpleton in the business world."

Averyt rose, crossed his cell and started out at the tall pines to southward. Finally he swung back and placed himself before Carroll. "I'll tell you the straight, unvarnished truth," he announced. "You can believe it or not, as you choose."

"Good."

"I had been safe at the lodge for two or three months; I knew that Franklin Furness was hopelessly maddened in Denver and barring only a possible sale of the place, I felt I was pretty safe from detection."

"That was until the afternoon of the eighth. At that time I had been out on the river in a rotten little flat-bottomed boat I have and when I landed and started up the slope I saw a big touring car in the grounds. You can't fancy how startled I was."

"I lay in hiding and watched. I saw the chauffeur—although it was not until later that I found out who it was—unloading the car and knew immediately that some one was coming there. I was quite sure that it was not Franklin Furness so that evening after I was certain he had gone for the night, I entered the lodge and investigated. There was enough marked stuff there to make me certain that a couple was coming there for a considerable period."

"In anticipation of just such a possibility as this, I had never put all of my things in the lodge, but kept my trunk and most of my stuff at the cabin I had bought down near the head. Also I had told Miss Devarney—to whom I have the honor to be engaged—that if ever she heard I had left the lodge she would find me at the cabin."

"She knew your real name and your past!" interrupted Carroll.

"Certainly," answered Averyt, with quiet dignity. "She wore that ring, by the way, on a ribbon around her neck, and several days before she lost it at the lodge where I presume you found it."

"In the dining room,"

"Owing to the sword of Damocles hanging over my head we had never announced our engagement. I could not ask her father for her hand without giving my real name and that involved explanations which made his refusal a certainty. So we deemed it better to wait and see whether I would ever be cleared."

"On the evening of the eighth I walked to the village where Esther lives and discovered that she was in Charleston doing some shopping and she was not due to return until the following afternoon. I left word with her folks that I wished to see her at the cabin. I learned later, by the way, that they merely told her I found it."

JUST NUTS

That's Different

wished to see her without saying 'at the cabin.' Our relations were open and above-board and her parents knew all along that she visited me. Moreover, her brother, Porter, a twelve-year-old, came with her most of the time."

"At noon or a little while after that, on the ninth, I was watching at the cabin and this strange couple . . . later, when I learned that the bride was Mary Carmody, the erstwhile vaudeville actress, I remembered having seen her . . . appeared. I went back to my cabin and found Peter Devarney there. He and I fished for awhile and later, when I knew that the train from Charleston was in and that Esther would have had time to ride out from Karnak, I sent Porter to ask her to come and see me. He, too, delivered the message literally, never mentioning that I was at the cabin; a perfectly natural oversight."

"When he had gone I went out on the river for awhile in my bateau and lay there thinking. Then I saw her coming from the direction of the lodge along a little path that skirts the river; she had not come along the road. I whistled to her and left the boat to join her."

"She said that she had thought I was at the lodge and that no one had mentioned to her that there were people there. She had not known for herself, as she had been in Charleston. I told her about the folks and when we walked toward the road together. And, whether or not you believe it, that is the truth. He gazed squarely into Carroll's eyes and to the detective came the belief that the man was speaking truth."

Orrin Kinney, the jailer, walked up the stairs, rattling his big bunch of iron keys. "Sheriff," he said, "there's some folks would like to see you."

"Who?"

"The Devarneys—all of them." Then he added in explanation: "Seth Devarney's crowd."

Averyt's face flushed. He glanced beseechingly at the sheriff and Potter nodded. "Send 'em up, Orrin."

And up they came, in the wake of Peter Royce, clerk of the court, and the skinny little probate judge. Potter opened the cell door, and quite frankly and without the slightest trace of embarrassment the girl went to Averyt and put her lips to him. He touched them reverently with his own.

The girl turned toward the others and back and eyes shining. Her and tightly clasped both of Averyt's. "With your permission, Sheriff Potter," she said quietly. "Mr. Royce will perform the marriage ceremony for us."

CHAPTER XVII

For an instant there was silence. Averyt was the first to speak, and he spoke in protest—

"No, dear, I can't let you do that. I can't."

"You must," she proclaimed imperiously. "I have brought my family as proof that it is done with their consent."

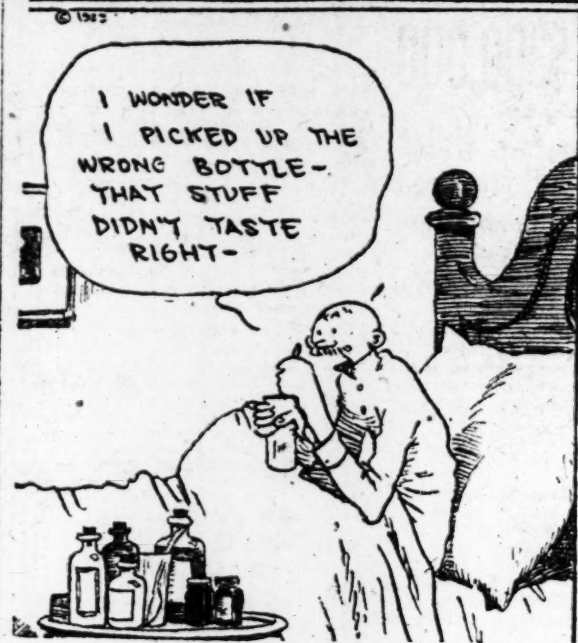

"But they—do you know . . . ?"

"Your name?" she smiled. "I told them."

Carroll stepped forward. "I think you'll all be delighted to know," he said, "that Mr. Averyt—whom you know as Heston—has been laboring under a misapprehension which will soon be cleared up. He's told us the whole story," he said, turning to the girl. "And we found out a good bit for ourselves. That little deal in the north—you know what I mean?"

"Yes."

"Will undoubtedly work out all right. It may provide him with a little unpleasant notoriety, but that's about all. There's a small chance that he won't get by with clear skirts."

Averyt turned a baggard face to the girl. "That's not the reason I refuse, Esther. It's against me. I can't prove that I didn't do it. It's my word for it, and they know that if I was guilty I'd lie anyway."

"I told them the truth," she said, "and Mr. Carroll knows it."

Carroll winked portentously at the sheriff. "You're really willing to take a chance, Miss Esther?"

"I'm proud to."

He turned to Averyt. "I'd advise you to marry her while she's willing. Averyt, it isn't every day that—"

Averyt's teeth clicked sharply. "I'll not permit the sacrifice so long as there is any suspicion of murder against me."

He said that he knew positively that Sheriff J. A. McCurdy personally used "bull-dozing, third-degree" methods in obtaining the confession from Dimple

Mr. Harrison also stated that he had been retained by both Bad and Johnny Nix to represent them. He said that they had paid him a small retainer, and that he made arrangements during his first visit to the jail Thursday morning to represent, as attorney, all three of the negroes.

Sheriff McCurdy, when told of the statement by Attorney Harrison, gave this statement in reply:

LEADERS GIVE UP HOPE FOR SHIP MEASURE

apprised of the proposed move late in the day so far as can be ascertained, but it was quickly felt that a number of republican senators would be called to the white house for conference tomorrow.

The filibuster today consisted for the most part of a speech by Senator McKellar, began at 1:15 o'clock and continued through the afternoon and into the night. The customary reading of Washington's farewell address in observance of the first president's birthday, which was done by Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, took up an hour immediately after the senate convened, and then Senator Gooding, republican, Idaho, who has been only lukewarm toward the ship bill, followed with an address on wheat prices stabilization, lasting a little more than an hour.

Reads Editorials.
Senator McKellar then took the floor and read an editorial in a Washington newspaper, which he described as "the administration organ," condemning the filibuster, and then bringing forth two huge bound volumes of the same newspaper, read at length editorials published in 1915 approving the filibuster then conducted against the Wilson administration's ship purchase bill. He also read liberally from the speeches made by Senator Jones, republican, Washington, in charge of the pending bill, and Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, both of whom participated in the filibuster of 1915.

The Tennessee senator, as he continued, seemed to be after the record set Tuesday by Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, in speaking continuously for about seven hours. Half a dozen other opponents of the bill were awaiting their turn to take the floor. Senator Brookhart, republican, Indiana, announcing that he was next in line.

Senator McKellar, however, concluded early tonight, having held the floor for five and one-half hours, but he gave notice that he expected to speak again on the subject of filibusters.

Says Ships Tied Up.
"There were five hundred ships tied up and five million men idle," Senator McKellar declared.
"A legacy of the Wilson administration," observed Mr. Smoot, Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, challenged this statement, quoting from a labor department report to show that unemployment had steadily increased through the summer of 1921.

"Well, there is not a man idle in New York today," interrupted Senator Calder, republican, New York.
"I hope that statement includes the senator himself," retorted Mr. Harrison, referring to Senator Calder's approaching retirement from congress.

Senator Brookhart, who followed Mr. McKellar, said he considered the day auspicious for a fight of the character then progressing, since it was the "natal day of George Washington, the world's greatest filibuster."

Talks to Gallery.
Frankly declaring that a filibuster was on, Senator Brookhart in his speech addressed to the wide expanse of vacant chairs on the floor and also to the gallery crowds, outlined the plans of what he referred to as the "institution of death." A half dozen republican senators, he said, "aided and abetted by a dozen other republicans—with democrats butting in all the time"—were co-operating in the filibuster.

He named Senators Couzens, Michigan; Ladd, North Dakota; Norris, Nebraska; LaFollette, Wisconsin; and Borah, Idaho, as republicans having speeches ready for delivery, together with Senator Fletcher, Florida; Heflin, Alabama; Harrison and other democrats. The opposition group also had won the support by "miracles," he said, of Senators Lenroot and Gooding.

Promises More Overall.
Senator Brookhart said that Senator Couzens planned to discuss the question of subsidy, and "start about the time of Noah's ark." The speech of Senator Ladd, the Iowa senator said, "was going into the scientific side" of the question, while Senator Norris would present geological and prehistoric phases. Senator LaFollette, the speaker added, was to take up political phases.

"But we cannot possibly make our records before March 4, unless these night schools run longer than midnight," he declared.
Senator Brookhart predicted that farm bloc senators would wear overalls to evening clothes, and to be worn in the senate, he said: "The farm bloc is going to do that some of these days, so look out for it."

than twelve hours showed no change in the situation with reference to the bill. Provision was made in voting a recess for an executive session tomorrow to consider confirmation of nominations before proceeding with the shipping bill fight.

declaring that the assignment of Patrolman Lindsey to the identification bureau had met with his approval, and that he had issued orders to that effect at the request of the committee. Patrolman Lindsey, it was pointed out, is the author of a card index system for recovering stolen property, which has been adopted by a number of cities throughout the country, and is particularly qualified to handle his new work.

Vigilance Is Urged.

Announcing his intention to increase the efficiency of the police department, as detailed in his formal statement to the police committee Wednesday night, which was filed without it being read, Chief Beavers went before all watches of the department Thursday and instructed them to exercise increased vigilance in the apprehension of safe blowers and other criminals which have been unusually active in the city during the past week.

Captain T. O. Sturdivant, head of the plain clothes squad, was called into a conference with Chief Beavers during the afternoon and instructed by the chief to concentrate his forces in "cleaning up" the present crime situation.

"There have been too many robberies and safe-blowing in Atlanta recently," declared the chief, "and I want you to clean up this situation. If you need additional plainclothes men to assist you in this work, I shall detail as many as you may require for this purpose."

Former Detective Chief A. Lamar Poole, who was demoted by the committee and assigned to traffic duty at Broad and Marietta streets, entered upon his new duties Thursday morning, his 12 days' vacation having lapsed Wednesday night.

The former detective head was attired in a new uniform and reported for duty promptly at 8 o'clock to Captain W. F. Terry. He declared that he was ready to begin his new duties and appeared contented with his traffic assignment.

Confessions of a Debutante

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY.
I run away from my fiancé, Jonathan Grey, rich and elderly, to the arms of Larry, a man who dances well. His wife, Mrs. Larry, shows me the folly of my action and I return home on the eve of my engagement party. I go on with the engagement to Jonathan, though in love with my stranger, a penniless youth, who placed to my coming out party, and tried to court me, but whose name I do not know. After a quarrel with Elsie, my willful younger sister, over her having gone to a dance with Larry and worn one of my gowns, I slip out for a walk in the park and see a figure at the former crystal place of Mr. Stranger and me. It disappears suddenly, however. At the theater with Jonathan, later, I let another man become too familiar and then begins a week of misery.

Tuesday, January 9th.
I used to tell Jonathan I was having fittings. And at home, since my engagement to the town's richest bachelor, I occupy a rather exalted position—that of never having to explain.

Rooming around alone part of the time I had run up enormous bills at the confectioners. I motored with almost anybody who asked me and lunched and dined with about the same degree of exclusiveness.

It was on Sunday after Harry and I had wandered around all afternoon, Harry with a little bit too much liquor inside of him, that we dropped into a rather well-known eating place on lower Broadway.

Harry had given the order when he said the first startling thing I had heard him utter since our introduction. Harry somehow ran awfully true to the patent-leather-haired type, which never says anything, merely repeats.

"The funny if my wife walked in here, it's a hanging out place of hers," he said.

I stared at him a minute. Then: "Your wife?" I almost shrieked. Fortunately we were in a booth and the one across from us was unoccupied so we were not in view of the other diners.

"Yeah," he grinned. "Since when have you had a wife?" I questioned.

"Let's see." He was puffing a cigar and sending the smoke curling upward. "Fast four years."

"And you never told me?" "Don't let that disturb you, little one." He said it mildly. "You're going to be married soon anyway, aren't you, didn't you tell me that?"

"Yes," I still had the grace to blush. While our food was being served he watched me oddly and silently. When the waiter left he began talking.

"You know, my dear," he said, "men are just—well—men, ordinary sort of people who all dress just about alike, act just about alike, in fact are alike—allowing for classes. There isn't anything you can compare them with except just themselves."

"But women!" he continued. "Ah, women are an entirely different matter! Women, some of them are like a star lit evening, coolly, serenely, lovely; some of them are like an old-fashioned garden, sweetly enticing, and some of them are like a mirage."

He was silent a moment, and then continued, looking at me through a mist of smoke as he talked.

"Like a mirage, a wonderful mirage in which you see everything you want, every desirable thing in all the world, but somehow can never quite attain. They're always before our eyes, tempting, alluring, but never quite attainable."

"Mirage women," he went on half to himself, "mirage women—and I have had d-i-v-e-n men out of their senses—my dear."

He smoked for a while thoughtfully. "And you are a mirage woman," he finished at length.

I bent over my plate. I felt dizzy. Harry had been filling my glass from his pocket flask. The place seemed insufferably hot.

Suddenly I was conscious of movement just outside the booth. Something was happening. A woman was standing there. Harry had come instantly to his feet. Contact with the table had dropped him back to the bench and then he rose again. I wondered.

He reminded me of a Jack in the box. I giggled. And then ceased for the shrill ripple of my own voice seemed somehow out of place.

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Leigh.
Author of "The House Side of Retail Selling," "The A B C of Retailing," Etc.

In buying canned vegetables you cannot, of course, tell before the can is opened just what you have selected. It is well, therefore, to bear in mind certain indications of the quality so that in reordering you will know which brands to reject and which to buy.

Canned vegetables are judged as to tenderness, flavor, color and clearness of liquor, so in studying them, keep these points in mind. Corn should be of uniform kernel, sweet and free from foreign substances, such as cob particles added by close cutting. Tomatoes have their value determined by size, solidity and color, which would naturally determine their ripeness. Beans are graded as to size, tenderness, flavor and clearness of liquid. The small varieties are of the highest grade.

String-beans of good quality should be tender, free of strings and uniformly small. In choosing canned fish, such as salmon, the points to observe are the color, flavor and only consistency of the liquor, which insures you good-tasting, well-kept fish. "Cat-salmon," as one cheap grade is called, is a kind to avoid. The fresh, oily, reddish-pink salmon is most tasteful.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Renew the Edge.
To sharpen shears or scissors, get a piece of fine sandpaper and cut with the dull scissors or shears. It will give them a good edge.

Stains from Vaseline.
Rubbing with kerosene will remove stains. If they are of long standing, put the article to soak in kerosene, then rub and wash with soap.

Dinners and Desserts.
Balance your desserts according to your dinner. With a vegetable dinner serve a rich dessert containing milk and eggs, but with a substantial meat dinner fruit or a light pudding is a wise decision.

Salad in Aspic.
When you have just a little bit of various fresh vegetables left over, cut them in pieces and arrange in layers and mould in aspic. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise. You will have a salad that is different as well as economical.

The Kitchen Wall.
If your kitchen wall is painted, never have it painted again unless every bit of grease has been washed off with soap, water and ammonia. Otherwise the paint will not adhere and in a very short time the peeling process will commence.

Ordinary freezing temperature (32 degrees Fahrenheit) kills very few forms of either plant or animal organisms. Even the extreme cold of liquid air does not kill bacterial spores.

CHAPTER LXXXIX.
Lucile's Confession.

"Ted and I have been engaged for a long time, you know," Lucile began suddenly, turning to Cynthia. "That night at the cafe a man asked me to dance—it was an awfully rough place, you know, and this man was drunk. Ted made him angry and they had a fight, and Ted knocked him unconscious. We left at once, but someone called the police, and we had to run to get away."

"It was awfully late then, and I didn't want to leave Ted; he was in an awfully pessimistic mood. He'd been expelled from college, and his father had threatened to disinherit him if that happened again. He wanted me to marry him. But of course that was impossible right then—everybody in the world was asleep, and we couldn't get a license then, any-how."

"We went to a rooming-house—that funny one, where you found me—and they let us sit up all night in the living room. It was perfectly dreadful. I told Ted I'd marry him the first thing in the morning, and then, right after that, we got into a dreadful quarrel. A woman came downstairs and she knew Ted. It was terrible. I hated him for knowing her, even though they were so close."

Cynthia told herself more than once during the next few days that she would never have believed that she could do what she was doing. To step out on the deck of an ocean liner—it seemed an absurd thing to do, yet she and Lucile were doing it, quite satisfactorily.

Never before had she been so glad to see New York's skyline, as when she saw it this time, early in the morning. The sight that never fails to thrill an American brought tears to her eyes. Home again—and where would Roger be?

Be Careful What You Wash Your Child's Hair With

If you want to keep your child's hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified coconut oil shampoo in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. (adv.)

100 ARRESTED IN POLICE RAID ON COCKFIGHT

Norfolk, Va., February 22.—More than 100 men were arrested in a raid this afternoon on a down-town business building, on the third floor of which detectives charged cock-fights were being staged. Eight cocks were dead in the pit, the officers stated, and others, spurred and ready for action were seized as evidence. Patrol wagons made many trips with the prisoners, and extra help had to be called on to aid in registering the men of charges of witnessing a cock-fight and aiding and abetting such a violation of the state laws.

Vicious Oregon prisoners are shackled with an iron boot that has a fifty-pound collar about the ankle.

Coats and Capes And Wrappy Cape-Coats

The showing of new models is varied quite beyond describing. Truly each seems more charming than the last as they are brought forth for inspection!

The Materials embrace all the soft pile fabrics, Tarquina Mel-rosa, Formosa, Kashmerette and others. And there are beautiful silk fabrics of light or medium weight. Poirer Twills, Twill-cords, Piquette and Roshanara crepes are employed and many handsome combinations with matelasse and embroideries.

Unusual Trimmings are seen in self fabrics—wide cuffs and collars formed of woven bands and quilted effects.

Some have collars of the beautiful summer ermine, caracul, or grey squirrel.

Rows of petal trimmings in self material are used, while some are very richly embroidered and ornamented with fringe and large buckles or clasps.

The Models are in medium or long flowing capes, the graceful wrap-around coats, straight or blouse coats, and many wrappy cape-coat effects.

The above are not traffic regulations for the police department to enforce in Atlanta's streets, but are the simple rules for Atlanta's high school girls to follow in going from one class room to another.

"Ramble, Ramble, Ramble All Around."

Thursday was open house day at the Girls' High school, and all the mothers and fathers of the 1,500 girls who attend this wonderful school were invited by the High School Parent-Teacher association to come over and see how things are with their young daughters.

Whoever wrote that song about "Ramble, Ramble, Ramble All Around" must have had a vision of what it would mean to go to school in the assortment of buildings which are now called the Girls' High school of Atlanta, for one must certainly need to be personally conducted from classroom to another not to be lost in the maze of corridors and passageways and up and down ways over there now.

And, incidentally, a whole wardrobe of clothes suitable for every sort of weather ought to be provided for the girls at the school, for they pass from room to room in weather which may change from the elements of the regularity of von Herrmann's weather reports and go indoors and out regardless of rain and snow and ice or sun or whatever the elements may have on hand when the class hours change. However, the physical conditions are pretty bad—as is well known—and this is one of the reasons why the P. T. A. and the school directors staged its open house.

But here is the wonderful, wonderful part of the dear old high school—the spirit which animates that student body is the most remarkable in all Atlanta—it is something for any city to be proud of—it is something which gives and it is worth traveling north, east, south or west, up and down, through and over and under and around and about as I did yesterday to see.

Wonderful Curriculum.
I dare say it's a long, long time since most of us have seen the inside of the Girls' High school building. I may chronicle that as far as the main building is concerned it remains the same, practically—but as to the curriculum—well, one has the opportunity of a lifetime here to learn almost everything which will be useful in after life—and this is what education in its finest and fullest sense should mean.

To the honor of education of Atlanta and to our city fathers who have permitted this wonderful institution of learning to grow up in our midst, let us hope that the curriculum will be extended and that the youth of the city will be opened.

We can but wonder, however, why the building conditions have not kept pace with the educational advancement, and wonder how long it will be before Atlanta shall build her splendid high school home and shelter its splendid girls splendidly.

Hope Gillespie Is Honored.
A very lovely event of Thursday afternoon was the children's party at which Mrs. Frank Gillespie entertained at her home on Park Lane in Ansley park, in celebration of the sixth birthday of her young son, Hope Gillespie.

The rooms were decorated in a manner suggestive of George Washington's birthday. The beautifully appointed table in the dining room was adorned by a white cover and had as an effective centerpiece a large white cake embossed in red and surrounded by red holders with burning blue candles. The guests were given favors of little red hatches, miniature cherry trees and George Washington caps.

The young guests played games throughout the afternoon.

Mrs. Gillespie was assisted by a group of her friends in entertaining the children.

The guests included Margaret Colbert, Frances Copeland, Grace Metcalfe, Dorothy Johnson, Martha Bennett, Lydia White, Correll Wilcox, William Ross, Nellie Hemphill, Nellie Fugitt, Edith Fugitt, Marie McAdams, Rachel Seay, Van Hampton, Mary Sanders, Marie McAdams, Jane McIntire, Russell McKee, Nat Harrison, Sam Weston, Phil W. ## Tech Glee Club At Seminary This Evening

An interesting event of this evening will be the performance at Washington seminary, given by the Tech and Glee clubs, of Georgia Tech, at 8:30 o'clock, to which the public is invited.

The program this year promises to be very clever and attractive, and many new and unique features will be offered.

Following the performances the senior class of Washington seminary will give an elaborate reception in honor of the members of the glee club. The class colors of yellow and white will be effectively used in the decorations.

S. I. S. P. Reunion Beautiful Occasion.
A good time together for members and friends was the keynote to the ninth annual reunion held by the S. I. S. P. club of the Y. W. C. A. at the Peachtree Arcade Thursday evening.

Supper was served in the "Y" cafeteria at 6 o'clock by Miss Martha W. Ramsey, Miss Genevieve K. Saunders, official decorator of the club, and the tables, adorned with white cloths and baskets of roses.

The evening was informal. Clubwomen and their friends, many of whom have been a vital part of the Y. W. C. A. since its organization in Atlanta 20 years ago, dispensed with their custom of having reunion talks and speeches and for the evening all were free to enjoy the occasion.

Miss Saunders announced that the S. I. S. P. club has paid for its clubhouse at the Y. W. C. A. camp which will be completed in the summer. The house, which is completely furnished and the members are planning week-end stays at the camp this spring.

Following supper, the club members gave an informal program in the "Y" club room. Miss Louise Morgan sang, "I Know a Lovely Garden," by D'Harlelot and Gilmour's "Kingdom of Dreams." Two aesthetic dances were given by Lucy Walker and Evelyn Bird, two of Miss Norine Sears' talented pupils. In a guessing contest on birds, the prize was won by Miss Gillman, in a drawing Miss Ruth Sandreid, Miss Ruby Hall won the consolation. The evening closed with comic contests.

Kappa Alphas Will Give Annual Dance On Saturday

The speakers will be Bishop McKel, Dr. W. L. Melton and Dr. Ashby Jones.

Mrs. Gillespie was assisted by a group of her friends in entertaining the children.

The guests included Margaret Colbert, Frances Copeland, Grace Metcalfe, Dorothy Johnson, Martha Bennett, Lydia White, Correll Wilcox, William Ross, Nellie Hemphill, Nellie Fugitt, Edith Fugitt, Marie McAdams, Rachel Seay, Van Hampton, Mary Sanders, Marie McAdams, Jane McIntire, Russell McKee, Nat Harrison, Sam Weston, Phil W. Lovely Belles Will Occupy Boxes at Emory Concert
One of the season's most brilliant events in collegiate social circles will be the Emory Glee club concert, Friday and Saturday nights. A splendid demonstration of the traditional Emory Glee club is assured by the heavy sale of tickets to students, alumni, and other friends of Emory. The concert itself is always an outstanding musical production of the year.

Every fraternity and social club at Emory has reserved at least one row of seats, and eight of the fraternities have planned box parties on the two nights. The boxes are assigned to the fraternities each year in the order of their establishment at Emory, thus assuring each group a box every two years. The boxes this year will be taken by Sigma Chi, Delta Chi, Phi Kappa Phi, Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Phi, Chi Phi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Chi fraternities.

The boxes will be decorated in the colors of the respective fraternities, and will be occupied as follows:

Famous Pianist And Flutist Will Appear in Recital

"By the Waters of Minnetonka," favorite among Indian love songs, will be a feature of the program to be given here by its composer, Thurlow Luehrance, famous composer-pianist, Wednesday afternoon, February 23, who will appear in recital with Edna Woolley Luehrance, mezzo-soprano, and George B. Tack, concert flutist, as the third attraction of the Series in time, arranged by the Atlanta Music club.

Mr. Luehrance knows the American Indian as perhaps no other white man or today knows him. Nearly 20 years of his life have been spent among the principal tribes, studying their customs and habits, and every one of these counts him a personal friend. He has been a good influence among them, and has therefore, gained their confidence and esteem.

It is only through such friendship that he has been taken into the more intimate circle of their lives and there learned and recorded the true Indian melodies, more than 3,000 in all. Hundreds of these have been arranged and harmonized into the most exquisite and appealing of Indian songs, and it will be the pleasure of Atlanta music lovers to hear them sung and interpreted by Thurlow Luehrance and his co-artists, as no others could interpret them.

Edna Woolley Luehrance, dramatic mezzo-soprano, regarded as the foremost vocal interpreter of Indian songs, sings and dramatizes the famous compositions in costume amid a typical Indian stage setting. She is said to possess a rich, full voice of beautiful quality, in addition to an attractive and charming personality. Completing the trio is George B. Tack, well-known concert flutist, whose artistic work adds the necessary finish to the Indian music.

The recital will take place in the afternoon of next Wednesday at the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's club, and will offer, without doubt, one of the most unique and delightful of the season's musical events.

In DRUID HILLS

Lots are now available for $2,500

WELVE years of development at a cost of over two million dollar have made Druid Hills the show place of the South. All the natural beauty has been preserved and enhanced by the skill and artistry of famous landscape architects.

Always beautiful, Druid Hills takes on a new loveliness in the springtime when the millions of dogwood blossoms and wild flowers turn it into a veritable garden bower. Fourteen miles of boulevards wind in and out the softly undulating hills, presenting at every turn a new vista of enchanting beauty.

There is nothing of the raw barrenness, the muddy streets, the lack of foliage that is characteristic of newly developed subdivisions. Druid Hills is not in any sense a subdivision! It is, permanently, one of the fine residential sections in Atlanta, as is evidenced by the hundreds of beautiful homes there, whose aggregate cost is over five million dollars.

Here, then is a place to really live! To build a permanent home in beautiful surroundings—secure in the knowledge that nothing that is undesirable can ever encroach upon your property, because of the permanent restrictions that have been thrown around Druid Hills. Neither stores, filling stations, apartment houses—not even a duplex house—can be built there. This is a community where your children will be proud to carry their childhood friendships through life.

Excellent transportation facilities are provided by two car lines: Ponce de Leon-Druid Hills and Emory University. Announcement has been made that the Druid Hills car line will be immediately extended to East Lake Road. Water, gas and sewer mains as well as light and telephone lines are laid to the owner's property line affording every convenience.

A home in Druid Hills is now within your means. A number of desirable located lots will be offered at $2,500 each. Larger lots may be obtained at conservative considerations.

For your convenience we are maintaining an office at the corner of North Decatur and Oxford Roads where you may always find someone to show you over the property, or you may secure full details at our downtown office.

Currency Body Accepts Harris Bank Measure

Bill Reducing Capital Requirements of Federal Reserve Made Part of Capper Measure.

Washington, February 22.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The house banking and currency committee today, through the activity of Congressman Charles H. Brand, of Georgia, agreed to substitute a similar provision of the Capper agricultural bill, now before the committee, with a measure sponsored by Senator W. J. Harris, making it possible for small state banks to become members of the federal reserve system by reducing the capital requirements now in force.

Congressman Brand, a member of the banking and currency committee, stated the Harris measure, which passed the senate recently, was found to be more elastic, and urged its acceptance on the ground that it would prove of more real benefit to farmers in securing credits. When brought to his attention, Senator Capper said he had no objection to the provision in his bill being substituted.

Commenting on the agreement, Senator Harris said it "was largely through Judge Brand's efforts that my bill received favorable consideration at this time," adding that they both had been greatly interested in the subject of rural credits ever since the matter has been brought before congress.

Judge Brand stated today he had been given assurance by members of the committee that a report on the agricultural credits legislation, hearings upon which are now being held, will be issued within a few days.

ALLEGED GUN THIEF IN DECATUR IS JAILED

"Greyhound" Henderson Recaptures Allen After Break From Officers.

Decatur, Ga., February 22.—(Special.)—J. J. Allen, who gave his address as 106 Auburn avenue, Atlanta, was arrested today in Decatur county on a charge of larceny after being taken to a cell in the county jail.

Allen had gone to the home of R. P. House, in Druid Hills, according to Mrs. House, and told her he knew Mr. House well, and that while talking with him a few days ago had secured permission to borrow his gun to shoot a hog.

Mr. House was away from home at the time and the loan of the gun was refused, but Mrs. House says she followed Allen until she saw his direction and then called Mr. House and told him of the occurrence. Mr. House caught and held Allen until the officers arrived to place him under arrest.

Similar occurrences had previously been reported to the Decatur authorities. Mrs. Roy Jones identified Allen as the man who had borrowed her husband's gun, saying he wished to shoot a mad dog, but had not returned the gun. She said that he told her he lived on Atlanta avenue, in Decatur.

When officers were taking Allen to the home of Mrs. Jones for identification, he broke away, his effort to escape forcing L. S. Henderson, "greyhound" of the county police force, to make a hard sprint to recapture their prisoner.

Officers state they are convinced Allen is the perpetrator of similar acts reported recently in and around Decatur. A number of citizens have visited the jail, seeking to identify Allen as the man who robbed them recently.

Income Paying Business Property

It is hard to buy renting property in the congested business center of Atlanta; the owners rarely ever sell it and it descends in the family to the next generation. Good income property may be obtained by purchasing in the coming business sections that have not yet reached their full state of development.

We can offer for sale a business building on W. Cain St., between Williams and Orme sts., this being about half a block from Luckie St. W. Cain St. has been undergoing the process of regrading and leveling for many months and the occupants of buildings on that street have suffered. The grading is finished, and the paving will soon be under way.

This building we offer is now leased at a yearly rental of $5,100. It is on a lot 50x200; and is a substantial structure so located that the income yield may be expected to increase in the future. Indeed, this piece of Atlanta real estate is going to be very valuable; price $55,000.
